

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The method and the apparatus for determining the mass of portioned units of active substances, in particular capsules, tablets or dragees, comprises leading the units of active substances through a microwave resonator and determining the mass from the displacement of the resonant frequency and the broadening of the resonance curve.